(a) Baseline

The video begins with a view from inside a vehicle, looking out through the windshield at an intersection under a clear blue sky. The road is marked with double yellow lines, white lines, and traffic signals hang above the intersection. Orange traffic barriers are set up on the left of the double yellow lines, indicating ongoing roadwork. On the right side of the road, there's a grassy area with some trees. The left side of the intersection has more trees and a few more traffic barriers. As the video progresses, the traffic lights at the intersection are flashing red. Vehicles first come to a complete stop, and then proceed through the intersection in the order in which they arrived. The camera remains stationary throughout, capturing the scene from a first-person perspective. The surroundings include a mix of greenery and urban elements, with a sign for Scripps Memorial Hospital La Jolla visible in the distance. The overall atmosphere is calm and orderly, typical of a suburban intersection during daylight hours.
